

HELEN ARMSTRONG AND W. A. MORRILL WED ON XMAS EVE

Miss Helen Armstrong, daughter of Thomas Armstrong, Jr., and William Austin Morrill, former state entomologist, were married at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the Armstrong residence on North Third avenue. Only the immediate relatives were present at the simple service, which was read by Reverend Bertrand Cocks of St. Luke's.

It was a Christmas wedding, with every detail of the decorative scheme suggestive of the holiday. The walls were hung with garlands of holly bright with scarlet berries which lent a brilliant dash of color. Ivy boughs filled every niche and corner and the Christmas idea was accentuated by a large Christmas tree.

Immediately after the dinner, which was also limited to the family, Mr. and Mrs. Morrill left for Los Angeles where they will take up their permanent residence.

The engagement, which was announced only last Saturday, caused keen interest in Phoenix where both Mr. Morrill and his bride have many friends. The date of the wedding was not made public so that yesterday's wedding will come as news to even those intimate with the couple.

Mrs. Morrill is the second bride in the Armstrong family within a few weeks. Her sister was recently married to Arthur H. DeReimer, a well known lawyer of Nogales. Mrs. De Reimer, who was present at the ceremony, returned to Nogales last night.

The Armstrongs are pioneer residents of the state. Thomas Armstrong, Jr., has practiced law in this city since the early days. His daughter, who became a bride yesterday, was graduated from Vassar. She is considered one of the particularly brilliant young women of the city and her work in the Associated Charities and child welfare activities has been recognized for its worth.

Mr. Morrill was state entomologist for ten years. He left here more than a year ago to make his home in California.

THERE ARE OTHERS

With the sugar equalization board on the job for another year, to hold down the enterprising efforts of sugar profiteers, and a grain corporation sitting on the flour profiteers, all the country needs is more preventative medicine of the same kind.

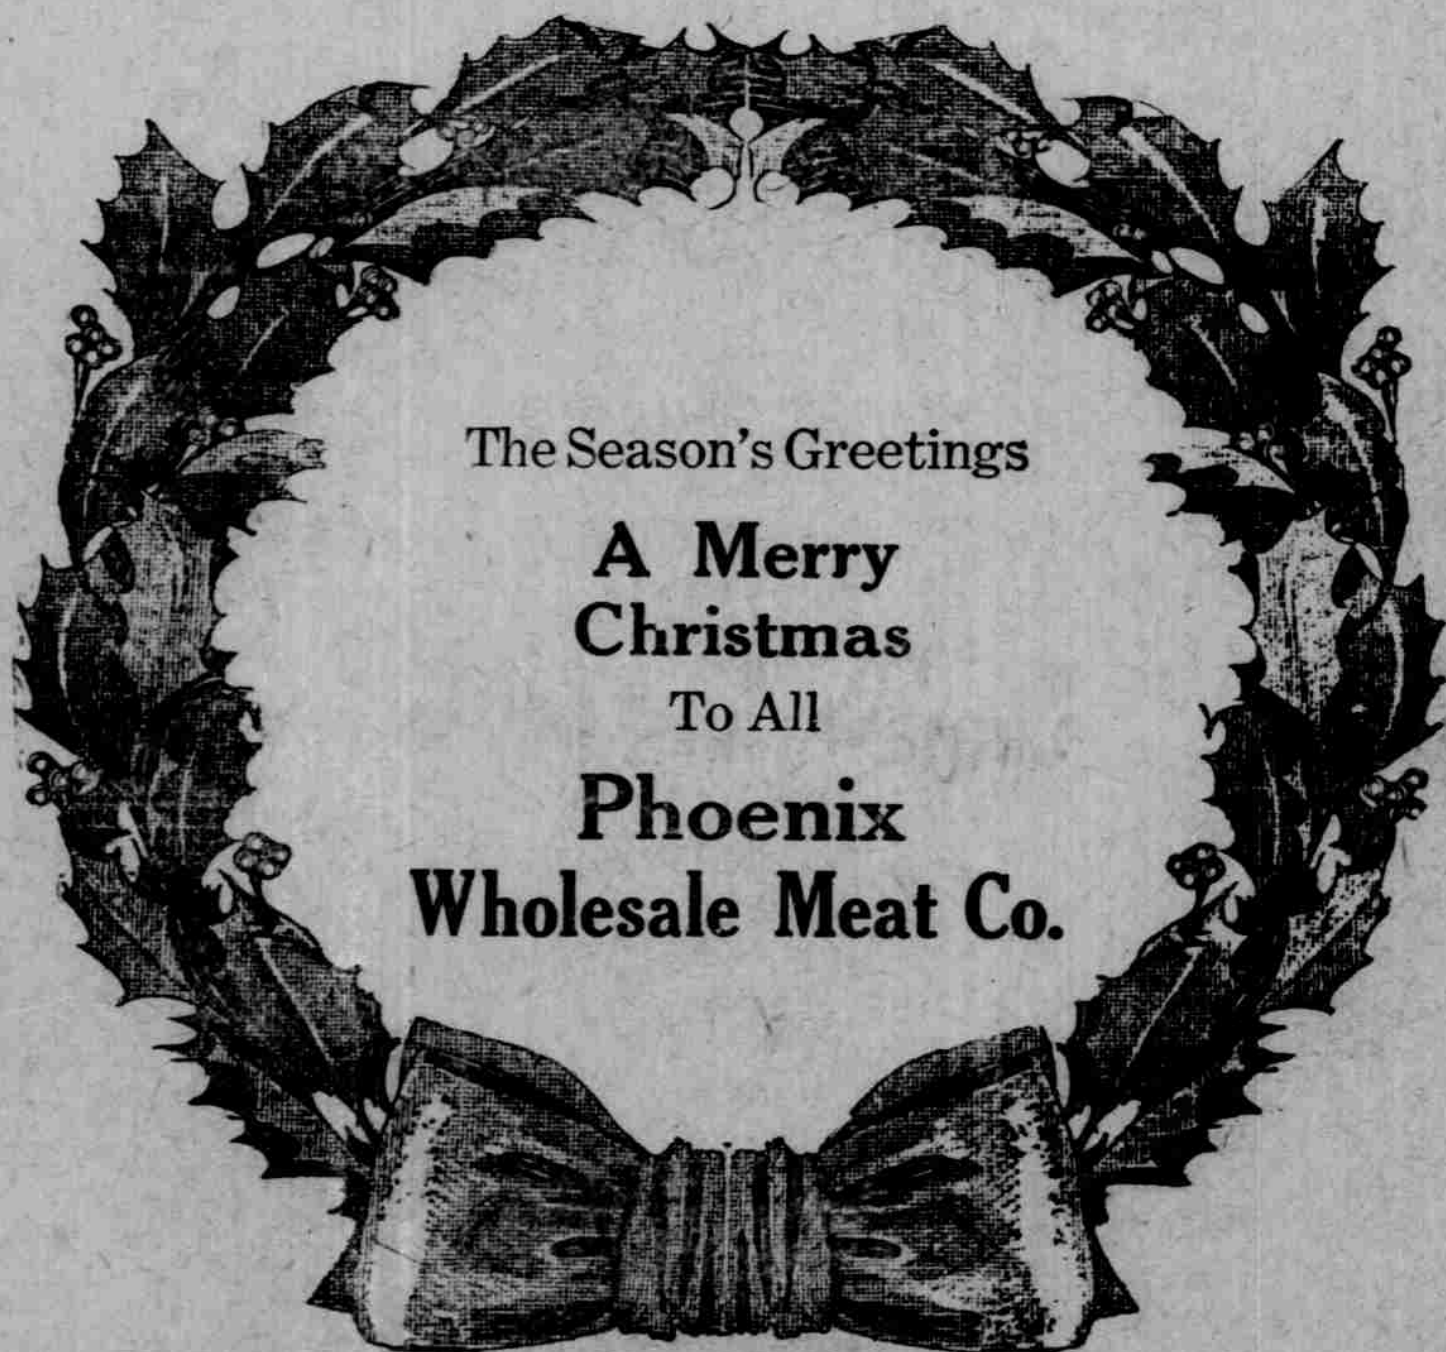

Coffee profiteers are doing what sugar gamblers did. Only they see no other limit to their ambition than the bottom of the public's purse. If a governmental board can buy Cuba's sugar crop to stabilize prices, why not Brazil's coffee crop, for the same purpose?

If the wheat belt's grain, why not the cornbelt's meat?

If a club is a good thing to guard the public against profiteering flour millers and sugar speculators, why not against hoarders and price boosters in other food bins?

LAST MINUTE GIFTS

Brides are not the only ones to whom dainty sachet-bags appeal. They have a charm that is universal. A small remnant of silk can be shaped in dozens of ways. Bags of unique design or just plain little envelopes of silk, softly stuffed with cotton holding a pinch of sachet powder, make Christmas gifts that are always acceptable to the feminine world. The cost is only the ingenuity of the maker and a very small outlay of money.
